Construction projects have so many parties involved and so many moving pieces of data flowing at any time that something may go wrong. Effective project management means controlling the data flow and staying on top of transmittals, submittals, email communications, change orders, materials, inventory, job cost and reports for hours and wages, safety regulations, insurance etc.

It is necessary to make a concerted move for adopting innovative materials and technologies for the building industry. Rapid strides in this field coupled with attitudinal change of professionals towards its adoption is the need of the hour. Better buildings with new materials and technologies are providing increased comfort, pleasure and eventually improved efficiency to its users, which gets transformed into increased benefits to all concerned.

There is dire need for paradigm shift in approach by introducing alternate fast track construction practices. Researchers worldwide have made significant efforts to find sustainable and fast track affordable technologies. World over innovative materials and construction techniques are used to meet such challenges.

The main purpose of this seminar is to bring together Researchers / academicians / construction industries in this field to discuss major challenges, emerging management tools & technologies and the best practices. It is accordingly planned to deliberate on the subject under the subthemes Project and Construction Management Techniques; Modern Construction Technology and Innovative Construction Materials including the Case Studies.
