ABOUT DELHI PRODUCTIVITY COUNCIL (DPC)

DPC is a not for profit autonomous organization established in 1959 by the National Productivity Council and the Delhi Administration, Govt. of N.C.T of Delhi for promoting productivity culture in India. DPC is tripartite in its constitution having equal representation from Government, Employers, and Employee organizations and from technical and professional institutions on its Governing Body.

DPC is engaged in providing training and consultancy to wide variety of organizations in the areas of Productivity, Quality, Safety, Management effectiveness and Organizational effectiveness for almost six decades in India.

ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

The intent of any contract and provisions of dispute resolution processes therein is for the acquirer of goods or services or both to insure delivery as per scope, specification defining quality and on time execution whilst making such intent transparent and balanced for be acquirer as well as the provider.

The best return contracts also often and in disputes since words can never describe the full intent and spirit of expectations of the acquirer nor back of the provider of goods or services or both. Thus or contracts provide for dispute resolution processes starting at the level of interparty revolution and ending in third party revolution such as arbitration or in extreme cases courts of law.

Generally, keeping in mind uninterrupted execution and customer-contractor relationship, ingenuity and understanding is employed by both to overcome and resolve disputes.

However in the event of taking a disputes to arbitration or litigation, the contract manager will need to collate and compile all the necessary information about the dispute to provide that to the lawyers and also to be ready with 5W's and an H. Reference is always made to the specific section(s) of the contract, specification, drawing etc. that established what was required which wasn't completed, performed correctly or that remains in dispute.

Understanding of contract documents as part of contract management is therefore vital for project success. Senior level managers, engineers and executives must be aware of the implications involved.

The workshop will deal at length with these aspects of settlement of disputes. The sessions will illustrate important and selected decided cases in arbitration. These will enable the Sr. Managers and Executives to understand from legal and commercial point of view their rights and obligations thus sharpening their competence in contract management and disputes resolutions.
